WHO GETS HOW MUCH FOR DOING WHAT IN AMERICA?

The Communists insist that they will not have to fight the United States because our capitalist system is going to destroy itself. The reason they give is that our system "exploits the worker."

How many of our own citizens have been impressed by this "exploitation" propaganda?

It is good, therefore, for everybody to keep informed regarding who is getting how much for doing what in America.

Preliminary figures show that, in 1957, about $285.4 billion* was paid out to the American people. Let's see how it was divided.

The greatest share, $248.8 billion (75.4%) went to payments to employees.

The next biggest share, $46.5 billion (12.9%) went to people who worked for themselves. This included business, professional, farming, personal services, etc.

The next biggest share went to people whose savings earned them interest. The amount of this interest was $18.5 billion or 5.7% of all the payments.

The next biggest amount was $11.1 billion which was paid out in dividends to people who had savings invested in corporation stocks. This amounted to 3.7% of all payments.

The remaining amount, $59.5 billion (14.2%), went to people in the form of rent.

Now let's look at this from another angle. There are only two ways to earn money—(1) by working, and (2) by letting other people use our savings.

By aggregating the above figures we find that in 1957, in the United States, payments for working (wages, payroll and income of self-employed) amounted to $269.9 billion or 77.4% of all the payments.

The payments for the use of savings (interest, dividends, and rent) amounted to $45.5 billion or 12.9% of all payments.

If the 12.9% representing payments for savings had been received by a small group of rich people, even that modest percentage might be considered "exploitation." The facts, however, disclose that, for all practical purposes, the people who get the 12.9% for working are, to a great extent, the same people who get the 12.9% for the use of their savings. Even in the direct ownership of corporation securities, the number of individuals is comparatively estimated at 10,000,000.

Next we must consider the 21,000,000 people who have savings accounts, the 30,000,000 who have life insurance policies, and the uncounted millions of middle-class landlords, because they too shared in the 12.9%.

Therefore, in the world has the ownership of capital been so wide-spread as it is in the United States—and distribution is increasing all the time.

The wonder, through what kind of check classes the Communists are holding at American capitalism.

And even more, who are individual enjoying such fruits from free enterprise, could be listed by categories listed to those who allocate ownership and control to a group of men, who are in fact producing nothing, but are living on the backs of the workers—supported by tax dollars.

These two masks are examples of the variety of styles used in ancient Egypt. The mask on the left is a 'djed' mask, often used for the deceased, while the one on the right is a 'was' mask, typically used for the living. Both masks are made of wood and are highly detailed, reflecting the artistic skill of the ancient Egyptians.

This canal is a modern engineering project designed to provide a steady water supply to the surrounding area. The railing on the left is made of dark, possibly metal or stone, and is supported by concrete pillars. The water in the canal is clear and reflects the surrounding environment.

This sculpture is a masterpiece of ancient Egyptian art, likely representing a deity or a royal figure. The use of dark material, possibly black granite or obsidian, gives the face a somber and powerful appearance. The intricate details of the headdress suggest a high status or divine nature.

BRIDGING THE GAP

The engineering team has successfully completed the bridge over the canal. The bridge is a simple, sturdy structure made of concrete and steel, designed to handle heavy traffic. It spans the entire width of the canal, providing a direct route for vehicles and pedestrians. The construction was a significant achievement, as it allowed for the uninterrupted flow of traffic in the area.

The construction site is active, with workers and machinery visible. The crane is a key piece of equipment used for lifting heavy materials and components. The site is well-organized, with clear paths for movement and storage of materials. The overall scene depicts a busy and productive construction environment.

The bridge is now open to traffic, and the area around it is being landscaped. The landscaping includes the planting of trees and shrubs, as well as the installation of walkways and lighting. The goal is to create a pleasant and functional public space that complements the bridge and the surrounding urban environment.

The project has been a success, and the community is pleased with the results. The bridge has improved the connectivity of the area and has provided a safe and reliable mode of transport. The landscaping and other improvements have enhanced the aesthetic appeal of the site, making it a more attractive and livable neighborhood.

The construction of the hull of a ship is a complex task, requiring a high degree of precision and skill. The hull is the backbone of the ship, and its construction is a critical part of the shipbuilding process. The hull is constructed from a series of plates, which are joined together to form a strong, rigid structure. The hull is then painted with a special paint to protect it from corrosion and damage. The hull is then set on blocks and the construction of additional hulls is started. The hull is then set on blocks and the construction of additional hulls is started.

OUR YARD

By "Bobby" Fisher

It was a sunny day in the yard. The children were playing happily. They were holding signs that said "OUR YARD". The children were dressed in various outfits, including hats and overalls. The scene was bright and cheerful.

SPOTS OF THE RILL

By John P. Sullivan

As the year draws to a close, it is time to look back on the events of the past year. It is a time of reflection and a time to evaluate our progress. The year has been filled with challenges and opportunities, and we have emerged stronger and more resilient than ever before. Our community has shown a remarkable ability to overcome adversity and to work together towards a common goal. We have seen the power of unity and the strength of our bonds. The year has also been a time of growth and learning, as we have embraced new ideas and technologies. We have taken steps towards a brighter future, and we are confident that the best is yet to come. As we look ahead, we are filled with hope and optimism. We believe that our community has the potential to achieve great things, and we are committed to making that vision a reality. We will continue to work hard, to support one another, and to strive for excellence. We will not be deterred by setbacks, for we know that our strength lies in our unity and our shared values. We will continue to build a better future for ourselves and for our community, one day at a time. The year has been a journey, and we are grateful for every step we have taken. We are proud of what we have accomplished, and we are excited about the possibilities that lie ahead. We will continue to move forward with courage and determination, knowing that we are not alone. We are a community, and we will stand together through all the challenges that life may throw our way. We will continue to strive for a better tomorrow, and we will make it happen. The year has been a gift, and we will cherish every moment of it. We will continue to work hard, to support one another, and to strive for excellence. We will continue to build a better future for ourselves and for our community, one day at a time.

the 1970s, the industry has been hit hard by a combination of factors. The most significant of these is the decline in the number of people who are willing to pay for a subscription to a magazine. This has led to a sharp decline in the number of magazines that are published, and a corresponding decline in the number of people who are willing to pay for a subscription to a magazine.
